The Federation of European Bars is open to all Bars established in a member state of the Council of Europe and It is concerned with individual and democratic representation of the European Bars.

It adheres to the principles which were established in the creation of the Conference of Principal Bars of Europe: observing the fundamental principles set out in the European Convention on Human Rights bearing in mind the grouping of cultures and civilizations which are Common to the Member Bars; the need to guarantee for individuals and businesses the service of independent lawyers; the need for an independent organization which ensures respect for the essential principles of the profession of lawyer in Europe; consideration of the particular role fulfilled by the European Bars in the defence of all liberties against every political economic and judicial authority.

Today, the FBE represents 210 European Bars with 800.000 Lawyers.

We thank the Florence Bar Association for inviting us to their wonderful, adorable city.

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

As Chairman of the Florence Bar Association and in the name of the entire Board, it is with great pride that I announce our city as the location for the forthcoming 2011 Congress of the Federation of European Bars which will be held from May 26th to 28th.

It is an honor for us to host an international event of this standing, and even more in Florence, which in 2011 will open its new Courthouse.

The entire legal community of Florence, together with our Civic Associations, will accompany you throughout this project, in our march to uphold justice, a road we share daily at home and abroad.

Looking forward to meeting you in Florence, I should like to take this opportunity to forward my very best regards.

Sergio Paparo
President - Florence Bar Association

Is Florence a city of Art or a masterpiece?

The historical center of Florence is so rich in masterpieces that it is hard to separate the city from its works; UNESCO has included it amongst the common heritage of mankind with the following motivation: <<from the “roman quadrilateral” in the Piazza della Repubblica area to the narrow and impervious roads of the medieval city, right down to the splendor of the fifteen hundred Pitti Palace and to the transformation undergone for the period when Florence was Capital City, one can relive the whole story of the city. The concentration of such a rich and valuable artistic, but also scientific-naturalistic heritage in an enclosed and well defined area such as the historical center, makes Florence unique and precious; extraordinarily beautiful churches, museums and art collections, historical gardens, squares, avenues, ancient palaces: Florence may well be defined “an open air museum”, not just a container of masterpieces but a masterpiece itself.>>

SOCIAL SECURITY FOR LAWYERS IN EUROPE

Comparative summary of specific national arrangements (descriptive part); comparison between pension systems or ordinary or alternative systems of social security in different States; implications on the tax side; ethical implications; how see lawyers the existing systems.

1- GENERAL THEMES

- the present and desired state of social protection in different States;
- adapting systems (where they already exist) to the supranational European perspective;
- verifying the relevance of compulsory systems;
- the disadvantage of inscription at the bar (where it already exists) in relation to the general tax system and the lack of consistency in how ethical norms are applied (between the different States and the different bars of the same State);
- the possible advantages of an autonomous superannuation system;
- the basic free market alternative.

2- STATE INSURANCE FOR LAWYERS AS A SYSTEM (AN ALTERNATIVE TO THE INDIVIDUAL'S PRIVATE INITIATIVE):

- is it a good thing for the national bar associations and for individual lawyers?

- is direct management by lawyers a good idea?
- should the territorial bars play a role (peripheral organisation and/or ethical control)?
- should it form part of a system of state protection for the national bars (including insurance, etc.)?
- might it be managed effectively by a common, autonomous European mutual providence organisation?

3- STATE INSURANCE FOR LAWYERS AS A LEGAL COMPULSORY SYSTEM (WHERE IT ALREADY EXISTS):

- is it in compliance with the general principle of free competition?
- is it compatible with a lawyer's self-determination, independence and competitiveness?
- is a basis for solidarity and coverage useful for the bars?
- is self-determination to be preferred for the individual lawyer on the European market?
- does it guarantee equality of treatment for determination with the tax system?
- is it in conformity with the principal of gender equality (reduction of the maternity allowance)?
- should it also have an ethical dimension, and to what degree?
